Right Hemisphere and Tata Consultancy Services Team Up to Deliver End-to-End Technical Documentation Solutions

Fremont, CA, USA and Mumbai, INDIA — January 9, 2007 — Right Hemisphere®, the leading provider of Product Graphics Management (PGM) software, today announced a strategic partnership with Tata Consultancy Services Ltd. (TCS), a leading global IT services and consulting organization, to deliver and support state-of-the-art technical documentation solutions worldwide. TCS will now provide services in technical publications encompassing document production, software implementation and software customization using Right Hemisphere's products.

The collaboration provides customers with a one-stop solution for outsourcing work in Product Lifecycle Management (PLM) publishing. The Right Hemisphere software suite allows companies to create technical publications concurrent with the engineering process. The software automatically transforms engineering computer-aided design (CAD) models into high impact 2D and 3D graphics and publishes them in widely used formats such as Adobe® PDF and Microsoft® Word® or PowerPoint . These features help manufacturers eliminate costly manual processes.

“Graphically rich, high quality technical publications increase both revenue and customer satisfaction while lowering warranty and support costs. By combining Right Hemisphere’s software with TCS’ expertise in technical publishing and engineering services, our customers now have a complete solution that helps them accelerate the delivery of their products to market,” said Right Hemisphere Vice President of Business Development Anton Commissaris.

TCS Global Head of Engineering and Industrial Services Regu Ayyaswamy said, “Our collaboration with Right Hemisphere will provide our clients with high quality technical documentation for their products. This enhances our ability to provide end-to-end product design solutions. Additionally, Right Hemisphere’s ability to automate publishing of technical documentation to a secure, standard, and cross-platform PDF will ease the final publishing and distribution process for our customers.”
